

Doctoral Regalia Orders

Academic Regalia and Hood Colors are determined by field or discipline, and university or college. Our Ed.D. in Educational Leadership program at CSUSB adheres to the strict standards of the American Council of Education with respect to colors, patterns, trimmings, length, etc...

While seemingly impossible to lay down enforceable rules with respect to academic regalia, it should be noted that academic regalia are markers of the degrees actually held by the wearers or those especially prescribed for them by the institution. Doctoral graduates are expected to adhere to these strict standards, and particularly when participating in academic ceremonial occasions.

Only members of the governing body of a college or university are allowed to make permissible exceptions. Members of religious orders may suitably wear their customary habits. The same principle applies to persons wearing military uniforms or clad in special attire required by a civil office.

The governing force is tradition and the continuity of academic symbols from the Middle Ages. The tradition should be departed from as little as possible, not only to preserve the symbolism of pattern and color, but for practicality as well.
